

Aviation-Event 2026 CLJ conference: celebrating five years of international aviation dialogue in Romania

Cluj-Napoca, 24 February 2026 – Aviation-Event 2026 CLJ Conference, the fifth consecutive Aviation-Event conference in Romania, will take place on 20 March 2026 at Cluj Avram Iancu International Airport (CLJ), in Cluj-Napoca, Romania.

Organized by Aviation-Event in cooperation with Cluj Avram Iancu International Airport, the conference will once again bring together senior airport executives, airline representatives, industry experts, institutional stakeholders, and media from across Europe and beyond. The 2026 edition will focus on current strategic challenges and opportunities shaping European aviation, including aviation competitiveness, regulatory frameworks, sustainability, infrastructure development, and future passenger flows.

Building on the success of previous editions, Aviation-Event 2026 CLJ will provide a high-level platform for exchange, international networking, and knowledge sharing, fostering meaningful open dialogue between industry leaders and decision-makers. The conference program will combine strategic panel discussions with practical insights, reflecting Aviation-Event's established international positioning and long-standing commitment to quality and relevance.

PhD. Eng. David Ciceo, CEO, Cluj International Airport, stated:

"Aviation-Event CLJ has developed into a reference point for aviation stakeholders in the region and beyond. Hosting the fifth edition in Cluj-Napoca underlines our commitment to international cooperation and constructive dialogue within the aviation sector, confirming Cluj International Airport's commitment to fostering international cooperation, innovation, and sustainable growth in aviation."

Marcel Riwalsky, CEO of Aviation-Event, added:

"Hosting the fifth consecutive Aviation-Event in Romania is a milestone we are particularly proud of. Cluj Avram Iancu International Airport has become a strong and trusted partner, and Aviation-Event 2026 CLJ will once again continue to provide an international platform for dialogue and cooperation within European aviation."

As in previous years, Aviation-Event 2026 CLJ will offer participants extensive networking opportunities, access to senior decision-makers, and international media visibility, reinforcing its position as a leading aviation conference format in Europe.

About Cluj International Airport:

Cluj International Airport, the main gateway to Romania's north-western region, has established itself over the past decade as a benchmark for growth and innovation in aviation. Strategically located in one of the country's most dynamic economic areas, the airport has consistently leveraged the full potential of its catchment area, growing from 36,000 passengers annually in 1996 to more than 3.58 million passengers in 2025. This remarkable evolution reflects sustained strategic investments in infrastructure and a strong commitment to delivering high-quality services, positioning the airport as a model of best practices in South-Eastern Europe.

About Aviation-Event:

Aviation-Event is a leading platform for networking, insight-sharing, and policy discussion within the aviation industry. Each year, Aviation-Event hosts prominent conferences across Europe, bringing together stakeholders from airlines, airports, government agencies, and technology providers to foster collaboration and drive innovation. With a year-round commitment to enhancing dialogue within the industry, Aviation-Event plays a pivotal role in shaping aviation's future.
